Who is AOHP?

AOHP is the single best resource for occupational health professionals in healthcare.

AOHP is the only national professional organization dedicated solely to addressing the needs and concerns of the occupational health professional in healthcare settings. Occupational health nurses/professionals take responsibility for employee care. They have a responsibility to advocate for organizational policies that help to publicize occupational hazards and advocate for new and safe technologies.

Over 1,000 occupational health nurses, nurse practitioners, physicians and physician assistants belong to AOHP, the single best resource for addressing the unique issues of occupational health.

Expert Education and Training

AOHP's members are highly motivated to maintain updated knowledge in the field and expect the organization to be one of their main educational resources. AOHP's Continuing Education Office develops many educational opportunities throughout the year, including the Annual National Conference. The conference is attended by over one-third of the members and is a primary source of professional and clinical updates. It offers a series of dynamic educational sessions which provide Contact Hours and continuing medical education for physicians, advanced practice nurses, and physician assistants. Chapters also offer educational opportunities at each meeting. AOHP also offers a traveling educational program, Getting Started On the Road, which provides practice basics. AOHP offers scholarships to assist with education.

AOHP Journal and Other Publications

AOHP provides a number of publications to its members that offer constantly updated knowledge. The AOHP peer-reviewed Journal is read cover to cover for its benefit in providing clinical information. Making A Difference, the quarterly electronic newsletter, is also widely read for its coverage of clinical practice, regulatory issues, and association news. For those who are establishing an employee healthcare practice for the first time, AOHP's Getting Started Manual is invaluable; the just published manual Beyond Getting Started offers more advanced guidelines for a professional practice. A number of other publications are also available for purchase through the Web site.

Networking With Your Peers/Strategic Partners

Our members say that one of the biggest benefits they receive from the organization is networking with their peers in occupational and employee health at both a national and local level. AOHP provides networking opportunities at its national conference, where hundreds of colleagues gather annually. Most states have chapter representation that meets on a regular basis and allows members to network. Members also use AOHP's popular Listserv frequently to discuss various issues. Networking with strategic partners such as OSHA, NIOSH, and the Joint Commission further extends the web of important contacts, and is supervised by our Association Community Liaison, who also oversees governmental policy and legislation.
